Defeat this movement by your votes, and give them but a shingle, aye, a brick of the old house, and they have at their command a Board of Supervisors, that will speedily erect a palace that will send a chill through the taxpayers soul and empty pockets, as his footfall echoes softly through its carpeted halls and spacious rooms.— Without entering here into the main question, or questioning the authority of the Supervisors to order the election under the bill as published, (which is considered doubtful by good lawyers, as well as by others); yet we do not doubt that they have violated the spirit and intent of the act, in designating the lands of "Harry White's heirs," as the point for the location of the new courthouse in the event of a change. These words are em bodied in the latter clause of the bill, and are in subscance the Supervisor's bill; drafted in Drummondtown and by a Drummondtown lawyer, and if the election is held as ordered, its provisions will operate wholly in favor of Drummondtown. Upon the face of the matter, and also by the declaration of the representative who had this bill in charge in Richmond, it is evident that the first clause (or we might say in contradistinction, the people's bill) was intended to supersede and as a substitute for the Supervisor's bill. This declares, in substance, that a commission composed of one man from each magiterial district, shall select the place upon the railroad for the court house in case the people vote for a change.

If built at Drummondtown, where it can benefit but few people, who have already enjoyed its benefits from time immemorial, and where citizens cannot reach it and sacrificing health, horseflesh and time, it would be a lasting and serious reflection upon our intelligence, and the ridicule of strangers.

In that event I would suggest as a fitting inscription over the grand entrance these words: "Accomac's supreme folly; she had an opportunity but failed to profit by it." And in the corner stone I would have placed the editorial in THE ENTERPRISE of the 18th of April, 1885, in order to show centuries hence, the follies into which our

The pure black favor a congregation compositoes express a similar desire on their own part. At a recent meeting the proposed division was agreed to, but the terms could not be settled. The minister being black, the blacks naturally claimed him, and also the church and furniture. Some of the black men have mulatto wives, and some of the black women have mulatto husbands. The difficulties seem unsurmountable.
